

30X30 ALERT

Muleshoe National Wildlife Refuge Attempting to Expand Acquisition Boundary from 6,440 acres to 7,000,000 in TX and NM

They plan to remove nearly three-quarter million acres, which is a direct attack on the oil, gas and mineral industries, agriculture production, and local economies.

WHAT IS THE PLAN?

On April 16, 2024, the Muleshoe National Wildlife Refuge, located outside Muleshoe, Texas, released a final Land Protection Plan (LLP). The federal government seeks to expand the “authorized acquisition area” from 6,440 acres to 7 million acres — without Congressional authorization.

Within this area, they are planning to add 700,000 acres to the Refuge by directly buying private property or acquiring permanent conservation easements.

WHO WILL BE IMPACTED?

The plan area is located in Lamb, Bailey, Parmer, Castro, Yoakum, Crosby, Lubbock, Hockley, Cochran, Hale, Gaines, Dawson, Garza, Lynn, and Terry Counties in Texas; and Lea, Chaves, Roosevelt, De Baca, and Curry Counties in New Mexico.

WHY DO THEY WANT THE LAND?

The Biden Administration has targeted this region for permanent protection as a part of their unauthorized 30x30 land grab (a.k.a “America the Beautiful”). They listed the Lessor prairie chicken and Dune sagebrush lizard as endangered to restrict land uses, and now are attempting to physically acquire this resource-rich land.

WHAT ARE THE NEXT STEPS?

There was no Congressional oversight. There was no public vote. The federal government is doing this by administrative fiat.

The Muleshoe project was finalized June 15, 2023, but was not made available to the public or elected officials until April 16, 2024. Even though the Service has been working on this plan with their environmental land trust partners, they failed to involve or directly notice the counties and other local governments that will be impacted.
